I am Adrian Franks. The work is the heartbeat.

Thirty-one years woven through design, advertising, and the arts.

Atlanta first, then New York for eighteen of them, and now a second home growing out of Athens, Georgia. I stand at forty-nine and I do not see a finish line — I see a runway.

I am a financially successful commercial artist building with the brands that move culture. I am an investor turning property into engines of B2B enterprise. I am a creative technologist building platforms that bridge talent, ideas, and opportunity for the community I call home. I am the man in the best shape of his adult life. I am the husband. I am the father. I am the legacy in motion.

Every brushstroke is intentional. Every digital pixel a piece of a larger masterpiece. This issue lays it down — what I have built, what I am building, what I will not stop building until it stands.

And the second half of this issue belongs to Nicole. Because no version of this future is mine alone.
